The image shows a detailed view of a tax table, likely from Form 1040, used for calculating tax liability based on taxable income. The table is organized into columns representing different income brackets, with rows showing the corresponding tax amounts. The visible income brackets range from approximately $54,000 to $58,000. The tax amounts are listed in dollars and cents, showing a progressive increase as income rises. The table is printed in a dense, grid-like format with small text for each cell.
