Who Makes an Act of Faith?

“Every dawn... a miracle takes place here at Valley Forge. I awake to find my men still here... beyond all reason... and then another miracle happens. They still obey my orders. Their staying is an act of faith. Faith in what? In something... greater than life itself... that's how I know the Hand of God is upon us. I believe our cause is blessed... and that manna will fall from heaven. What sort of manna? Some great victory or catastrophe will turn these 13 separate States... into a Nation”

A Revolution by 13 States established a Revelation... as the eternal Spirit of Christ with his Twelve Disciples, numbering 13, inherited the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. “In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth...,” turning the tides of time to touch the hand of Mankind and create One Nation Under God, Indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all... and

“THE NATURE OF IDEAS COMMUNICATED”

“We are in a sense as much responsible for what we do to others with words... as we would be with weapons”

If so, “the path to our own destruction may lie less in the weapons we can conceive” and more with the destructive construction in the laws we can create.

“It is said that God made man in his image... but man fell from grace. Still, man has retained from his humble beginnings... the innate desire to create. But how will man’s creations fare? Will they attain a measure of the divine... or will they too, fall from grace?”

*Mankind has created a legal system and attempted to introduce a distinction between “interpretation” and “construction”, but what if, our understanding of these concepts is defined... only by the intellectualism of indifference and not from Mankind’s true creations of “empathy, sacrifice, love... these qualities are not confined to walls of flesh and blood... but are found within the deepest, best parts of man’s soul no matter where that soul resides.”

“The makers of our Constitution undertook to secure conditions favorable to the pursuit of happiness. They recognized the significance of man's spiritual nature, of his feelings, and of his intellect. They knew that only a part of the pain, pleasure and satisfactions of life are to be found in material things. They sought to protect Americans in their beliefs, their thoughts, their emotions and their sensations. They conferred, as against the Government, the right to be let alone -- the most comprehensive of rights, and the right most valued by civilized men.”

“To protect that right, every unjustifiable intrusion by the Government upon the privacy of the individual, whatever the means employed, must be deemed a violation of the Fourth Amendment. And the use, as evidence in a criminal proceeding, of facts ascertained by such intrusion must be deemed a violation of the Fifth.”

“The sacred rights of mankind are not to be rummaged for among old parchments or musty records. They are written, as with a sunbeam, in the whole volume of human nature, by the hand of the divinity itself; and can never be erased or obscured by mortal power.” - 1775

“The people made the Constitution, and the people can unmake it. It is the creature of their own will, and lives only by their will.”

— John Marshall, 1821

In all of U.S. Supreme Court history, no Justice has written as profusely on matters of religion, specifically Christianity's impact upon public and political law. “The rights of conscience are, indeed, beyond the just reach of any human power. They are given by God, and cannot be encroached upon by human authority, without a criminal disobedience of the precepts of natural, as well as of revealed religion.” 3: § 1870.

"Decency, security and liberty alike demand that government officials shall be subjected to the same rules of conduct that are commands to the citizen. In a government of laws, existence of the government will be imperiled if it fails to observe the law scrupulously.

Our Government is the potent, the omnipresent teacher. For good or for ill, it teaches the whole people by its example. Crime is contagious. If the Government becomes a lawbreaker, it breeds contempt for law; it invites every man to become a law unto himself; it invites anarchy."

THE LAWS OF PRINCIPLE AND PRACTICE

FIGHTING AN IDEA or THE HAND OF GOD

I have always found words interesting, as I discover Mankind’s thoughts and look to the actions of what is created by the Human Heart, spoken by the Human Soul, only to be touched by the Human Spirit. By The Power of the Holy Spirit and In God We Trust, The Laws of Principle and Practice is not a written program to be placed on paper, nor shall any idea be fought by nameless or faceless governmental officials. In Truth, the thoughts, words and actions of two thousand years ago can live in us today as: “The answers to Mankind’s future problems can be found within so long as there are those among us willing to make the sacrifice.”

For In Spirit... “who we are, is who we were.”

It is said...

“Hindsight... It’s like foresight without a future,” when we fail to learn the lessons and messages of our past, or forsake the meaning of our Faith in the future, because...

our fears in the moments of the present day, are greater than our Faith on Judgment Day.

For, In God We Trust the key to the dawn of an Everlasting Age.

"The life of the law has not been logic: it has been experience. The felt necessities of the time, the prevalent moral and political theories, intuitions of public policy, avowed or unconscious, even the prejudices which judges share with their fellow-men, have had a good deal more to do than the syllogism in determining the rules by which men should be governed. The law embodies the story of a nation's development through many centuries, and it cannot be dealt with as if it contained only the axioms and corollaries of a book of mathematics. In order to know what it is, we must know what it has been, and what it tends to become. We must alternately consult history and existing theories of legislation. But the most difficult labor will be to understand the combination of the two into new products at every stage. The substance of the law at any given time pretty nearly corresponds, so far as it goes, with what is then understood to be convenient; but its form and machinery, and the degree to which it is able to work out desired results, depend very much upon its past."

"WORDS OF INTENT, LETTERS, LANGUAGE AND POSSESSIVE RELATIONS"

These are not the objects of sacrifice...

Judge Learned Hand had never been well known to the general public, but a short speech he made in 1944 won him fame and a national reputation for wisdom that lasted until the end of his life. On May 21, 1944, he addressed almost one and a half million people in Central Park, New York, at the annual "I Am an American Day" event, where newly naturalized citizens swore the Pledge of Allegiance. He stated that all Americans were immigrants who had come to America in search of liberty. Liberty, he said, was not located in America's constitutions, laws, and courts, but in the hearts of the people.

The writer—and speaker? Judge Learned Hand. He, of course, was a trial judge and later a Circuit Judge, and “Hand has been quoted more often than any other lower-court judge by legal scholars and by the Supreme Court of the United States.” Here are his moving words:

We have gathered here to affirm a faith, a faith in a common purpose, a common conviction, a common devotion.

Some of us have chosen America as the land of our adoption; the rest have come from those who did the same. For this reason we have some right to consider ourselves a picked group, a group of those who had the courage to break from the past and brave the dangers and the loneliness of a strange land. What was the object that nerved us, or those who went before us, to this choice? We sought liberty – freedom from oppression, freedom from want, freedom to be ourselves. This then we sought; this we now believe that we are by way of winning. What do we mean when we say that first of all we seek liberty? I often wonder whether we do not rest our hopes too much upon constitutions, upon laws, and upon courts. These are false hopes; believe me, these are false hopes. Liberty lies in the hearts of men and women; when it dies there, no constitution, no law, no court can save it; no constitution, no law, no court can even do much to help it. While it lies there, it needs no constitution, no law, no court to save it. And what is this liberty which must lie in the hearts of men and women? It is not the ruthless, the unbridled will; it is not freedom to do as one likes. That is the denial of liberty, and leads straight to its overthrow. A society in which men recognize no check upon their freedom soon becomes a society where freedom is the possession of only a savage few – as we have learned to our sorrow.

What then is the spirit of liberty?

I cannot define it; I can only tell you my own faith. The spirit of liberty is the spirit which is not too sure that it is right; the spirit of liberty is the spirit which seeks to understand the minds of those men and women; the spirit of liberty is the spirit which weighs their interest alongside its own without bias; the spirit of liberty remembers that not even a sparrow falls to earth unheeded; the spirit of liberty is the spirit of him who, near two thousand years ago, taught mankind that lesson it has never learned, but has never quite forgotten – that there may be a kingdom where the least shall be heard and considered side-by-side with the greatest. And now in that spirit, that spirit of an American which has never been, and which may never be – nay, which never will be except as the conscience and courage of Americans create it – yet in the spirit of America which lies hidden in some form in the aspirations of us all; in the spirit of that America for which our young men are at this moment fighting and dying; in that spirit of liberty and of America so prosperous, and safe, and contented, we shall have failed to grasp its meaning, and shall have been truant to its promise, except as we strive to make it a signal, a beacon, a standard to which the best hopes of mankind will ever turn; In confidence that you share that belief, I now ask you to raise your hand and repeat with me this pledge:

I pledge allegiance to the flag and to the United States of America and to the republic for which it stands—One nation, Indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.
